LOST and FOUND

"Hey, Rassel! Look what I've brought for you!" Daffy Duck called to Elmer Fudd from the front door where he stood holding a small, furry dog in his arms.

"I sent you down to the store to buy the special nut you lost to fix our old washing machine and you bwing home a dog!" Elmer sighed with dismay.

"The man at the store said they don't make that kind of nut any more," Daffy explained. "He also said it would cost a fortune to have one specially made. On the way back, I met your neighbor, and she said she needed a puppy sitter, so I volunteered — for you!"

Daffy thrust the tiny dog into Elmer's hands. "He's fed out of a bottle, just like a baby," Daffy added as he dashed outside to carry in the little dog's bottles.

"There's a reason for everything," Daffy panted as he returned. "If I hadn't gone to the store, you wouldn't be in the puppy sitting business now!"

"But I don't know anything about puppy sitting!" Elmer objected. "I've hardly ever been awound dogs before!"

"You're around one now, Clyde!" Daffy said, skipping to the back porch.

"You cwazy duck!" Elmer stormed, running after him. "You're getting me into twouble."

"It was no trouble at all," Daffy chuckled as he placed the bottles in the refrigerator. Then, taking the large, round lid off the washing machine by the back door, he poked his head inside and added, "Sure is dark in there. I'd better start hunting for that lost nut." He set the lid back on the machine and dashed out to the yard. "I'll look for it in the tool shed again," he called.

"Ha!" Elmer muttered. "He only has to look in a miwwor to find a nut!"

A moment later, there was a loud BANG!

"Yipe! Elmer, help!" Daffy shouted in a muffled voice. "Set the puppy down and come here! The door's banged shut and I'm locked inside the shed!"

"Serves him wight!" Elmer grumbled, laying the puppy down on top of the washing machine.

As Elmer hurried outside, the lid of the machine tipped slowly and the puppy slid gracefully inside. Then, just as smoothly, the lid tipped back up again, not quite closing all the way.

"You're always doing something wong!" Elmer said as he unlocked Daffy.

As they returned to the porch, Elmer stopped in his tracks, staring wide-eyed at the washing machine.

"I've been wobbed!" he shouted with alarm. "The puppy — he's gone!"

"GONE?!!" Daffy squawked as they searched frantically around the room. "Where could he go?"

Elmer was down on his hands and knees, his head under the washing machine, when he heard the puppy barking softly.

"There you are, you little wascal!" he said with relief, lifting the puppy out. "Daffy, look!" he exclaimed, pointing at the puppy's mouth. "He's found the nut for the washing machine! Now I won't have to spend a fortune for a new one!"

"I told you there's a reason for everything!" Daffy said triumphantly. "Now you can make a fortune from your new business instead!"

Goldilocks and the Grouchy Bears

1958 Version

Once upon a time a slick chick named Goldilocks was rodding down the road on her Jaguar bike. Suddenly, she found she was lost! So she knocked on the door of a cottage nearby. Nobody answered. But she went in anyway. In the built-in refrigerator, Goldie found a bottle of 7-Up—and drank it.

Just then, in marched three grouchy bears (Mr., Mrs., and Teddy—they lived there)! "Zounds," growled Teddy, "some crazy cat's been drinking my 7-Up!" "Man, yes," said Goldie, "but I was all shot and 7-Up gives you new energy in just two to six minutes!" Then Goldie smiled. "Show me the way to go home—and I'll treat you to 7-Up at my house!" The bears shouted, "You're strictly from Coolville!" So they all went to Goldie's house and drank 7-Up happily ever after.

MORAL: Be sure you have plenty of 7-Up at your house for everybody—worn-out folks or grouchy bears. Remember—for a quick, refreshing lift . . .

Nothing does it like Seven-Up!
